

LRS FEDERAL PROVIDING SUSTAINABILITY SUPPORT FOR US ARMY MEDICAL COMMAND

Millersville, MD October 19, 2011 – LRS Federal and teaming partner Weston Solutions received a contract to provide leadership and support to the U.S. Army Medical Command (MEDCOM) in implementing their Sustainability Strategic Plan and evaluating sustainability program implementation options at medical treatment facilities throughout MEDCOM. This contract will leverage sustainability to sustain mission readiness, improve quality of life for personnel and patients, strengthen community relationships, and reduce total costs and environmental footprint of operations through prioritized, sound environmental and social investments.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Mobile District awarded this work to LRS Federal for support at U.S. Army medical facilities throughout the United States, including Hawaii, and at overseas bases in Germany, Italy, Japan and Korea. The contract will include a variety of tasks to support the MEDCOM Headquarters Sustainability Team in implementing the sustainability program and communicating the program objectives to the military facilities and community. The Sustainability Team provides strategic communications through publications, websites, conferences and industry organizations. They also conduct program meetings and workshops at the U.S. Army medical facilities with the local management and operations personnel to support implementation of the Sustainability Strategic Plan.

“Sustainability drives the future well-being of our way of life and everything that is important to us. Finding ways to implement sustainable practices in every aspect of business operations, work practices and processes continues to gain momentum in the public and private sectors and is an important LRS focus area,” said Sean Logan, LRS Federal CEO and former Marine Corps officer. “To be able to provide these services for our active duty men and women and their families allows LRS to directly support one of our country’s most important obligations – the health and welfare of our military family. The U.S. Army Medical Command is on the front lines of providing medical care for our troops and we couldn’t be prouder to play a small part in helping them meet their mission.”

LRS Federal is a well-established Service-Disabled Veteran-Owned Small Business (SDVOSB) with headquarters outside Annapolis, Maryland. LRS projects are implemented at federal installations nationwide with a focus on sustainability, engineering, construction management, environmental services, “green” energy initiatives, and program/project management support.
