

LRS Federal Project Description

BioWatch Monitoring Program in the National Capitol Region

LRS Federal is conducting air monitoring support for Washington DC and the surrounding area. This contract supports the DHS Office of Health Affairs (OHA) BioWatch program, a bio-defense program to help protect the health and medical security of the homeland. The BioWatch program provides continuous surveillance for aerosolized exposures caused by intentional release of biological agents.

Under this contract, LRS performs services that include sample collection, operations and maintenance, new technology integration and emergency/critical support. The sensitive nature of the work requires close coordination with state, local and federal officials to ensure prompt reporting of monitoring results.

This is a Firm Fixed Price and T&M on-site support contract with LRS personnel located at a government facility. LRS interfaces with Homeland Security's Relocatable Field Laboratory (RFL) and system-wide communications; operates and maintains DHS's aerosol samplers (Distributed Sampling Units [DSU's], Portable Sampling Units [PSU's], and Deployable Field Units [DFU's]); collects and replenishes samples from the above sampling units; interfaces/uses the Sample Management System (SMS); and operates the BioWatch Field Office. LRS implements a detailed SOP that includes extensive chain of custody protocols and sample logging. Monthly reporting is provided with earned value project management reports to identify fiscal and project progress details. Operations currently are performed in the National Capitol Region, from Richmond to Baltimore, including Washington D.C.

"All planned milestones have been completed on or before set deadlines. LRS has required minimal oversight by the Government in all situations. There has been a 99.8% collection efficiency achieved throughout the duration of their term of contract (95% is required.) They also received a Special Programmatic Citation/Award for Maintenance as the 2010 Top Performer in their category. In FY2011 they completed the contract with a residual of over $100,000 that was used to replace equipment in need of repair."

- Kevin Boshears, Director of the DHS Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization, when awarding LRS the DHS 2011 Small Business Achievement Award
