

LRS Federal Project Description

Department of Energy GFPR Pilot Program Support

This program review was in direct response to a Congressional mandate to evaluate the viability of implementation of Performance-Based Contracting strategies (specifically Guaranteed Fixed Price Remediation (GFPR)) as a mechanism to gain efficiencies and effectiveness in the Department of Energy cleanup program. The contract requires expertise and assistance in developing the DOE’s GFPR pilot program; installation-specific reviews and assessments; training; and reporting of findings to senior DOE officials. This work was sole-sourced for accomplishment by LRS Federal based on their unique experience providing the required services.

The first phase of this programmatic review was to identify candidate cleanup sites to serve as pilot projects. LRS Federal conducted the program review which included site visits to five DOE installations selected by DOE Office of Environmental Management – the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center, the Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory, Brookhaven National Laboratory, Savannah River Site and the Los Alamos National Laboratory.

During the site visits, LRS reviewed site history, available documentation, and regulatory records for the sites. LRS interviewed site personnel, regulatory agencies, and other key stakeholders to gain additional site information pertinent to the current project status and for a determination of possible paths forward. LRS was required to provide awareness training on the program objectives and to conduct briefings on the initial assessments for DOE officials that included the Assistant Secretary of Energy. Additionally, LRS Federal prepared site reports detailing findings of the assessments and management recommendations for cleanup and closure of the sites. As part of this effort, LRS established a portal on its SharePoint site to allow all members of the team, including DOE employees, ready access to all documents during the course of the project.

As part of these efforts, LRS also performed a preliminary screening for various other DOE sites to provide a “desktop” review and analysis for possible development of performance acquisition strategies.
